The image displays a detailed needlework pattern for a Viking longship, oriented vertically. The pattern is presented on a grid and uses various symbols to define the ship's form and details. A dashed outline of the ship's hull is visible in the upper left quadrant. A large arrow on the left side points downwards, indicating the direction of the stitch along. The pattern includes various symbols such as solid black squares, white squares, triangles, circles, and crosses, which correspond to different needlework techniques. The ship's hull is defined by a series of vertical lines, while the interior and other details are filled with specific symbols. The overall design is intricate and characteristic of Scandinavian art needlework.
